RED CROSS MOTORCADE EXCELLENT

Eighty Machines in Line for $100,000,000 Red Cross
Fund Here Saturday

BIG CROWDS GREET THEM

Last Saturday afternoon was a little more lively than Antioch is accustomed to at this time of the year, the occasion being the visit of the Red Cross motorcade. Promptly at four o'clock, the schedule time, the advance car arrived. It was followed by close to eighty other cars decorated with American, Red Cross and service flags and banners of all descriptions. They were Red Cross boosters including Red Cross nurses, Junior Red Cross, representatives of war relief, each young lady representing a score of nation, Uncle Sam, Columbia, men and ladies bands, sailors, mothers with sons in service, Illinois Reserve Militia, Home Guards, Red Cross auxiliaries, service flag bearers, farmerettes from the Illinois Training school for women near Libertyville; executive committee of Lake County Chapter of Red Cross, newspaper reporters and citizens.

A local parade made up of the school children and the Antioch band joined the ranks at the grade school and after a parade through the main street, a halt was made at Morley's corner where Senator R. B. Swift gave a brief address and then introduced the principal speaker Mr. James Harrington Scott of Geneva, Illinois, who briefly extolled the good work of the Red Cross organization; how it has been a light that has never failed any nation in pestilence, devastation of war. He reminded his auditors that the government had turned over to the Red Cross the mighty task of furnishing surgical dressings for the great war, and that no longer were the wounds of soldiers dressed with sawdust. He declared it far greater patriotism for one to donate to the Red Cross than to invest in Liberty bonds, the safest investment in the world. "The Red Cross asks you to 'give,' not to 'invest,'" he said, "and we must give unconditionally if we are to stop the terrible Hun horde by standing solidly behind our boys."

At the close of the program the parade again marched down Main street and a grand rush was made for the machines and in a few moments they were on their way to Fox Lake, where another stop was made.

The motorcade left Libertyville at the appointed time and one of the features of the trip was to enter and leave each village exactly on schedule time. Their first stop was at Grayslake and there they were given a royal welcome and a goodly number of the Grayslake people joined in with them for the remainder of the trip. The second stop was at Lake Villa where their numbers were again increased by the joining of the Allendale band and enthusiastic Red Cross workers.

This parade was one of the biggest and best of its kind that has ever toured Lake Co. and it truly was a grand inaugural of the big drive which opened Monday morning for the purpose of raising at least $20,000, the amount asked of Lake County Chapter.

Dr. Warriner Writes

For Information

Having had his curiosity aroused by a visit from solicitors representing the Lincoln Picture Film Co., who canvassed this village quite thoroughly the fore part of the week, Dr. W. W. Warriner wrote to the investigating department of the Chicago Daily Tribune for information regarding the company. Their reply which he received this (Thursday) morning is as follows:

W. W. Warriner Esq.,
Antioch, Illinois.

Dear Sir:

The Lincoln Pictures Classic Inc., has not replied to a request for information. We know nothing about it but can tell you that out of twenty-five or thirty film stocks sold here in the last four years, we know of only three that have paid any returns whatever to investors.

Yours very truly,
Investors' Guide Department.

Dr. John Turner Writes of Army Life at Fort Riley

M. O. T. C., Fort Riley, Kansas,
May 15th, 1918.

Friend Johnson:

I have now been here over two weeks and feel like an old Vet. M. O. T. C. is the medical officers' training camp and is established for the purpose of giving intensive training to the Reserve Medical Officers. The course is almost entirely military, by that I mean we have to learn all that a private does, such as drilling, etc., because when we are through we will have private and non commissioned officers under our command and unless we are versed in the military aspect we would likely show up badly before our men.

It is a great life especially since I have become used to it. We get up at six o'clock, line up for roll call, then morning mess after which we have physical exercise and then drilling and marching. In that one has to learn to use the left foot as well as the right, it sounds easy and looks easy but it is not easy at first, one foot wants to go in one direction and the other in an opposite direction all rookies have that trouble. We have classes on military work and end the day with two hours horse back riding, that sounds good don't it? Well, Friend Johnson that is a stunt you have to get used to. It is quiet a sight to see a couple thousand horsemen going through drills such as four right or left, etc., the horses are all well trained and full of life.

You may wonder why doctors are learning to ride, they are mounted officers and must know how to do it. Here are some of the stunts we put these horses through: jumping hurdles, fences, ditches, etc., trotting, galloping and running with or without our feet in the stirrups. One difficult thing is to ride in a circle with a small ball in your right palm and arm extended first walking, then trotting, then galloping, when you can do that without losing the ball you can say you can ride.

Fort Riley and Funston is one whole division and has about thirty thousand acres, hills and gulleys everywhere, in Illinois we would call them mountains.

It is some windy place, instead of rain we have sand storms. I am going to repeat this is a great life and Uncle Sam treats his men with the very best of everything. No one need fear that their boy is going to be mistreated. All stories one may hear to the contrary is false. We work hard eat a lot of good food and sleep for all we are worth, and feel as if we could catch and every one like the German army with one hand.

I persue everything in Antioch is as usual. Tell your friends to support the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A., they are doing wond'ra.

With best regards to you and Mrs. Johnson. Your friend,

1st Lt. John A. Turner, M. R. C.
Co., 32. M. O. T. C. Fort Riley, Kas.

Liberal Response for

Flag and Pole

Who can say that Antioch is not patriotic? No sooner was the need of a flag and flagpole brought before the people, than the money was subscribed for the purchase of the same. B. F. Terrant of Beach Grove, taking the initiative part in the matter of raising the funds. The next call was for some one to get the pole which was donated by Chase Webb, and attended to setting it. We made the appeal in last Thursday's issue, and Saturday afternoon the pole was brought to town. Leas Crandall, Herman Wienke and Wm. Belter having volunteered to furnish the brawn and muscle required for the heavy part of the job. The pole is sixty feet and the flag which has already arrived and can be seen at Webb's store, measures 8x18. The pole is to be erected on the property of D. B. Sabin, close to the north side of the village hall. Now will some of our carpenters please donate a little time and get the pole prepared and set, so that we may have a flag raising Thursday morning.

Lake County Stands Third in State on last Liberty Loan

Chase Webb, Antioch, Ill.

Dear Sir:

In behalf of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago and the Lake County Liberty Loan committee, I wish to thank you for your hearty and earnest co-operation in the manner in which the Liberty Loan drive was so successfully hailed in Lake County.

The latest report show that the County over sold its quota about 90 % and stands Third County in the State.

Yours very truly,
H. C. Burnett,
Lake County Chairman.

RED CROSS WAR FUND DRIVE ON THIS WEEK

Twelve Inner-County Townships to Raise $20,000--Lake Shore Another $20,000

Decoration Day Will be Observed in Antioch by Big Celebration and Flag Raising Ceremony

Lake county, with the rest of the nation, is this week busily engaged collecting its allotment of the $100,000,000 necessary to carry on the great war relief work of the national Red Cross and if one may judge from the universal sentiment of approval everywhere evident in the inner-county towns, the $20,000 that is expected from that territory is assured and the amount will be greatly exceeded.

In each township are one or more captains supervising the solicitation of ten assistants. The team captains are in turn responsible to the campaign manager and executive committee. As a basis of calculation and equitable apportionment every tenant or farm owner in the rural communities is requested to give 10 cents for each acre of land composing his farm. In villages $2 per thousand of actual valuation of home property is solicited. Men of wealth are asked to give in proportion to their means, as estimated by the executive committee or the lists and estimates committee. Employees and others not in either of the classes noted are appealed to, to do their bit. Business houses and industries have their allotment, with ledgers and organizations contributing as a body in addition to the amounts given by individual members.

Every citizen will be given an opportunity to do his or her part. Prompt compliance greatly facilitates work of the solicitors, upon whom the real burden of the campaign falls.

One-half of Lake county's allotment of $40,000 is being subscribed by Waukegan township and allied chapters.

The campaign closes Saturday night and quick, energetic work is required if the various teams succeed in performing the task expected of them.

You can help best by determining the amount expected of you and handing it in promptly to the solicitors when you are visited.

Elmer E. Brook has been appointed as team captain of the Antioch Township and he in turn has appointed the following aids: Charles Sibley, Chase Webb, C. F. Richards, Father Lynch, Wm. Dupre, Rev. Pollock, George T. Johnson, Geo. B. Johnson, W. E. Drom, Frank Kennedy and Geo. White. This committee is making a house to house canvass throughout the township in the interest of this drive and are confident of raising the $2,000 which is this township's allotment.

Death of Millie Haynes Occurs at Poor Farm

A message was received here Sunday telling of the death of Millie Haynes, which occurred that morning at the Lake County poor farm at Libertyville where she has been under treatment for the past month, a complication of kidney and heart trouble being the cause.

He had been in very poor health for more than a year and spent several months of the past year at the county institution. Last fall he returned to this vicinity seemingly much improved but a few weeks ago he became so much worse that he was obliged to go back for treatment, but his case was of too serious a nature to permit of a recovery.

Undertaker Strang brought the body to Antioch Sunday afternoon and placed it in his undertaking rooms. The burial took place Tuesday afternoon with Rev. Pollock in charge of a short service at the grave.

Those Called for next Draft

The draft board of district No. 2, have made public the names of the 112 young men who will leave in the draft of May 28, for Camp Gordon, Atlanta, Georgia. Those called from Antioch are: Christ Laursen, Frank Johnson, John Horan, Jas. Hennahan, Asa H. Patch, Fred Olson, Harry Palmer, John H. Messing and M. E. Cobb.

Piano and Violin Pupils' Recital was Excellent

The recital at Mrs. Zelger's last Thursday evening, of her piano pupils and also seven violin pupils of Mr. Bragg's, was well attended. Excellent results have been obtained by both of these teachers. The program, systematically arranged, was well rendered by those who participated. Let us hope that we shall hear more of these recitals which are of great benefit to the community in an educational sense. Both of these teachers were more than pleased with the large and appreciative audience which evinced such a desire to know more of the progress made by their pupils in the past.

The program consisted of the following numbers:

Black Walnut To Be Hunted By Boy Scouts

There is one material scarcity of which will slow down battle and big airplane manufacture and rifle production for the army it is black walnut.

Sally important is it the president devoted his efforts to having a nationwide search made for it and has appealed to the 33,000 Boy Scouts of America the one organization that can scry it out from every part of the land.

Chicago Executive James West has given out President Wilson's letter, it follows:

"To my Scouts of America:

"In carrying out the program of the Department it is of the utmost importance that large quantities of black walnut lumber should be secured. Black walnut is used by the Ordnance Department for the manufacture of gun stocks and by the airplane for the manufacture of propeller blades and bombing airplanes.

"The lack of black walnut trees, the native owners, the size of the trees, the price at which they can be had is greatly desired. It is believed organization of the Boy Scouts of America is particularly well constituted for obtaining this information. They longer any large lots of walnut, but there is a large supply wheeled into groups or centers at want time there are to be found only trees here and there scattered over whole United States east of the Mountains.

"I therefore call to the well known loyalty of organization to secure for the government this desired information.

"In securing the owners of the trees should be of our pressing needs and should be requested to show their pin by doing all in their power to their government in this great v

IN EXCEEDS FOUR BILLIONS

Districts Oversubscribe, Minneapolis Leading With 172 Per Cent of Quota.

MOST SUCCESSFUL CAMPAIGN

Great Result Achieved Notwithstanding Country Has Been Called Upon to Pay Income and Excess Profits Taxes.

Washington, May 20.—The total of the Third Liberty loan is $4,170,019,650, an oversubscription of 20 per cent above the three-billion minimum sought. The number of subscribers was about 17,000,000. Every federal reserve district oversubscribed, the Minneapolis district 172 per cent, the highest, and the New York district 121 per cent, the lowest.

In announcing these figures on Thursday the treasury explained the total may be changed slightly by later reports from federal reserve banks of subscriptions during the last days of the campaign.

"This is the most successful loan the United States has offered, both in number of subscribers and in the amount realized," said Secretary McAdoo in a statement. "Every subscription was made with knowledge that allotment in full was to be expected, unlike the first and second loans, when allotments were limited. I congratulate the country on this wonderful result, irrefutable evidence of the strength, patriotism and determination of the American people."

"This great result was achieved notwithstanding that the country has been called upon to pay since the second Liberty loan income and excess profits taxes of approximately $3,000,000,000, making a total amount turned into the treasury of about $7,000,000,000."

MANY U. S. PLANES IN EUROPE

Congressman Baer of North Dakota Defends Aircraft Production Board—Big Fleet Coming.

Washington, May 20.—The aircraft production board found a new defender in the person of Representative Baer of North Dakota. In a statement he said was based on accurate information secured from aviation authorities, Baer claims the government has not spent $910,000,000 for airplanes during the last year, but only $105,000,000.

"On May 1 we had 250 war planes in Europe," he added. "Besides this we have 1,200 training planes in Europe. In America we have over 4,000 training planes and are turning out 1,000 airplanes a month. The expenditures of the government include airplane equipment, selected timber, motors and various other parts which when assembled will make a mighty aerial fleet."

NOTED ITALIAN FLYER KILLED

Captain Resnati Falls to Death in New York When Wing of Plane Crumples.

New York, May 20.—Capt. Antonio Silvio Resnati of the Royal Italian flying corps, who piloted the ten-passenger Caproni biplane from Washington to New York and back again recently, was killed on Friday at the Hempstead flying field. Resnati, one of the most famous Italian military aviators, met his death while testing an American-built Caproni plane of the bombing type, recently authorized for purchase by the United States government. Flying alone and carrying a cargo of 60 bombs, Captain Resnati left the flying field on what was to have been the first test of the new type of biplane. The machine arose only 100 feet when one of the planes crumpled and it fell backward. Captain Resnati was crushed to death by the engine.

HUGHES HEADS PROBE

PRESIDENT NAMES FORMER RIVAL TO AID INVESTIGATION.

Asks Quick Aircraft Investigation and Demands Prosecution of Any Persons Found Guilty.

Washington, May 17.—President Wilson has asked Charles E. Hughes to assist Attorney General Gregory in investigating the aircraft situation. Mr. Hughes has replied that he will be glad to assist.

Correspondence between the president and Mr. Hughes was made public here. The president said the importance of the aviation service warranted an investigation with as little delay as possible.

In asking Mr. Hughes to help in the investigation the president said:

"You have doubtless noticed that very serious charges of dishonesty have been made in connection with the production of aircraft. Because of the capital importance of this branch of the military service I feel that these charges should be thoroughly investigated and with as little delay as possible in order that the guilty, if there be any such, may be promptly and vigorously prosecuted and that the reputations of those whose actions have been attacked may be protected in case the charges are groundless."

"I requested the department of justice to use every instrumentality at its disposal to investigate these charges and, with the approval of the attorney general, I am writing to beg that you will not with him in making this investigation. I feel that this is a matter of the very greatest importance and I sincerely hope that you will feel that it is possible to continue your very valuable service in studying and passing upon the questions involved."

Mr. Hughes replied that he would arrange his affairs to enter upon the inquiry with as little delay as possible.

IRISH PLOTTERS ARE DEPORTED

Vessel Carrying Prisoners Leaves Kingstown for Holy Head, Wales.

SITUATION WELL IN HAND

Desperate Eleventh-Hour Attempt to Turn Tables on Government Made by Crowd of Masked Men—Little Bloodshed Reported.

London, May 21.—A vessel carrying 73 Sinn Féin prisoners left Kingstown, Ireland, says a Dublin dispatch to the Central News Agency. It is understood the ship is proceeding to Holy Head, Wales. A large crowd cheered as the ship departed, but the demonstrators were dispersed quickly.

The government at last accounts had the Irish situation well in hand. A desperate eleventh-hour attempt to turn the tables on the government forces was made by Sinn Féin in County Tyrone while Viscount French's dragoon was gathering in 500 men and woman conspirators in the German-Irish revolt plot.

A crowd of masked men stormed Burncourt castle, the seat of the duke of Althorpe, and made an unsuccessful search for arms.

There has been scarcely any bloodshed in the island-wide roundup of plotters. Except for the abortive raid of Burncourt castle, the only disturbances reported so far took place at Skilbreen, where seven Sinn Féin men resisted constabulary forces.

One of the protesters is reported to have been shot in the arm. Troops are guarding the government buildings and railways in Cork.

The Observer, commenting on the Irish situation, says:

"A grave step has been taken in Ireland for grave reasons. Friday morning Professor De Valera, president of the Sinn Féin party, and many other extremists were arrested."

"The reason is that these avowed separatists and pro-Germans have once more been in treasonable touch with the enemy, despite the leniency with which they were treated after the last Dublin outbreak."

"In view of Admiral von Capelle's assertion that Germany is assured for years to come of a steady supply of U-boats which never cease their efforts to get in touch with the Sinn Féin and separatists, this repeated treason must be put down with an unflinching hand."

"An organized nationalist attempt is being made to mislead and prejudice American opinion with regard to the Irish situation. This attempt will undoubtedly be continued unless it is met with stern and cool discrimination across the Atlantic."

"John Dillon, the Irish nationalist leader, and his friends have made themselves responsible for a misleading manifesto. It asserts that the British government is not sincere in its intentions with regard to the home rule bill and that the British policy is failing in its promise to Ireland."

"We hope that President Wilson and the people of the United States will not be misled by the Dillon manifesto. We hope they will set themselves fully to understand what the British policy in Ireland really is."

"It is a plain thing and an honest thing and is the only thing compatible, on the one side, with the war interests of the allies, while, on the other side, tending steadily to reconcile two breeds and creeds."

"Without that, Ireland, in wasting and barren agitation, will plunge from one unbecoming to another and there will be no health in her."

POWDER BLAST KILLS 200

Plant of the Aetna Chemical Company at Oakdale, Pa., Destroyed—Injured Hurdled Half-Mile.

Pittsburgh, Pa., May 21.—Probably 200 men were killed on Saturday when an explosion at T. N. T. demolished the plant of the Aetna Chemical company at Oakdale on the Pennsylvania railroad, 10 miles from this city.

Coroner Samuel C. Jamison ordered a census of the town in an effort to ascertain the number of persons killed. There were 500 workmen in the explosives plant at noon when a report, not much louder than the crack of a pistol, came from the soda house. Every man knew its deadly import, and as one man they rushed for the nearest exit.

Many of the injured, some of whom were found as far as half a mile from the remnants of the factory, were brought to Pittsburgh hospitals. The property loss was estimated at $1,500,000.

DOOR OPEN TO PEACE

ENGLAND WILL LISTEN TO REAL PROPOSALS.

Balfour Declares Vienna Must Move to Both France and England.

London, May 18.—Great Britain is prepared to consider proposals from the enemy, provided they are forward by accredited persons in a straightforward manner. Foreign Secretary Balfour declared on Friday in the house of commons.

"If any representative of a belligerent country desires to lay before us any proposals," said, "we are ready to listen to them."

"The British government was desirous of an honorable termination of the war, he added, but the peace of the central powers heretofore had not been in the interests of honor and peace. Mr. Balfour stressed at length the peace principles of Emperor Charles of Austria who his brother-in-law, Prince Sixtus Bourbon, and which were submitted to the French and British governments. The subject was brought up by pacifists and advocates of peace agitation.

There was no evidence now or any time, he added, that German government circles contemplated the possibility of what "we should regard as a reasonable peace—a peace which would secure the freedom of the world and freedom for those who are in the grip of German domination."

He held no secrets from President Wilson, Mr. Balfour said. Ever since thought he had on the war or thought down by American aviators, diplomacy connected with the war was as open to President Wilson as to any other human being.

He did not think it possible for Great Britain and the United States to carry on the great work in which they were engaged or to deal with the complicated problems of today without complete confidence, and so far as he was concerned, complete confidence would always be given.

U. S. MAIL SENT BY AIRPLANE

Aviator Flies From New York to Capital With 12,000 Letters in 3 Hours and 20 Minutes.

Washington, May 17.—Aerial mail service in the United States on Wednesday became an accomplished fact. Piloted by army aviators, airplanes carried consignments of mail from New York and Philadelphia to Washington and from Philadelphia to New York. A plane which started from the national capital for Philadelphia in the presence of President Wilson and other high government officials was forced to land at Waldorf, Md., thirty miles away, because of a broken propeller. With the exception of Sunday, daily trips from each end of the New York-Washington air mail route are planned by the post office department. Three hours and twenty minutes after a machine piloted by Lieut. Torrey H. Webb left the Belmont flying field near New York the mail it carried was landed in Washington.

LUFBERY IS SHOT DOWN BY GERMANS

Huns Kill the U. S. Air "Ace" Over the American Lines.

BULLET PIERCES GAS TANK

Airman's Only Wound Was a Hole Through the Thumb—Yanks Take Revenge by Destroying Hun Planes.

Paris, May 22.—Maj. Raoul Lufbery, the first American ace to be killed as the result of an aerial fight, was shot down on Monday with full military honors by French and American detachments.

With the American Army in France, May 22.—Maj. Raoul Lufbery, who has been regarded as the best aviator in the American service, was shot down in flames and killed Sunday morning by a big German triplane which he was attacking. Lufbery jumped from his flaming machine when 800 yards above the ground. He had 17 victories to his credit. Lufbery's home was in Wallingford, Conn.

The German machine which brought Lufbery down was armed with two machine guns, with an operator for each piece.

Lufbery's only wound, aside from those he received when he crashed to earth, was a bullet hole through the thumb. Apparently the same bullet punctured one of the gasoline tanks of his machine.

The German machine was under heavy anti-aircraft fire several times both before and after the air fight, and one explosion of a shell upset the enemy plane, but it managed to straighten out again.

It was about ten o'clock in the morning when a German triplane suddenly descended from the clouds, suddenly because of engine trouble, until it was only some 1,500 meters over the city of Toul. The American flyers were on the alert and some of them headed for the fighting line to await the enemy on his return.

Lufbery and the pilot of another machine made after the Germans, who quickly ran away from the direction of the line, the two American machines following him. Eight miles away from the enemy's line Lufbery was seen to attack from under the tail, but then he drew off, as if his machine gun had jammed. Two minutes later he attacked again from the same position, and almost immediately his machine burst into flames.

May 22.—A French aviator shot down a German plane back of the Lunerville sector. Two men from the plane were captured by the Americans. The German machine came from somewhere in the would secure the freedom of the world and freedom for those who are in the grip of German domination."

He held no secrets from President Wilson, Mr. Balfour said. Ever since thought he had on the war or thought down by American aviators, diplomacy connected with the war was as open to President Wilson as to any other human being.

He did not think it possible for Great Britain and the United States to carry on the great work in which they were engaged or to deal with the complicated problems of today without complete confidence, and so far as he was concerned, complete confidence would always be given.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

May be Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—This Letter Proves It.

West Philadelphia, Pa.—"During the thirty years I have been married, I have been in bad health and had several attacks of nervous prostration until it seemed as if the organs in my whole body were worn out. I was finally persuaded to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made a wall woman of me. I can now do all my housework and advise all ailing women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I will guarantee they will derive great benefit from it. Mrs. FRANK FITZGERALD, 25 N. 41st Street, West Philadelphia, Pa."

There are thousands of women everywhere in Mrs. Fitzgerald's condition, suffering from nervousness, backache, headaches, and other symptoms of a functional derangement. It was a grateful spirit for health restored which led her to write this letter so that other women may benefit from her experience and find health as she has done.

For suggestions in regard to your condition write Lydia E. Pinkham, Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. The result of their 40 years experience is at your service.

"OUR FLAG"

The Red Cross

BY EDGAR A. GUEST.

I am too old to share the fight;
Too many years have come and gone
Since first I saw the morning light.
My youth has been and traveled on.
I am too old to join the line,
Far-flung today that truth shall live;
I may not die for what is fine,
But I am not too old to give.

I am not yet so old that I
Have drifted from the world apart;
I still can hear the helpless cry,
And mercy still can reach my heart.
I still can share from day to day
The burden that our youth must bear,
And I thank God that I can say
The Red Cross is my symbol there.

I am too old to bear a lance,
Across the shell-torn Flanders field
I may not go where troops advance.
And death's grim terrors are revealed;
But I can hear the helpless call,
And I can serve them while I live;
And I thank God that through it all
I shall not be too old to give.

The Long Arm of Mercy

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The Red Cross is the Long Arm of Mercy.
It is the Kindness of Mankind—organized.
In Man is an Angel and a Devil, a Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. The Red Cross is the Good, aroused, energized to thwart the Bad.

It is the best antidote we know to the bane of war. There are other Charities, more or less helpful. The Red Cross is the mightiest of all Charities, the Love, and Pity of all men made supremely efficient.

If, as Emerson said, "sensible men and conscientious men all over the world are of one religion," this is the expression of that religion.

The Red Cross is Humanity united in Service. It asks no man's opinion; only his need.

Black or White, Friend or Foe to the Red Cross there is no difference; it only asks: "Who is Suffering?" And to him it goes.

The Red Cross is so Efficient that Government recognize it; so Pure in its purpose that whoever wishes well his fellow men, desire to help it; so Clear in its administration that the most suspicious can find no fault in it.

The Red Cross not only seeks to alleviate cruelties of War; it is the expression of those human sentiments that some day will put an end to War.

It is the impulse of Love, striving to overcome the impulse of Hate.

It is Mercy's co-operation struggling against rivalries.

It is the one Society in which every Man, Woman and Child should be enrolled; for it knows no no prejudices, no protesting opinion; the human does not live that does not feel that the starving should be fed, the sick tended and the wounded healed.

Majestic and divine is this Long Arm of Mercy it finds the fallen on the battlefield; it is the nurse and the physician to the victim in the pit; it leads the weeping orphan to a home; it feeds the starving, cares for the pestsmitten whom all abandon and pours the oil of Help and Pity on the bitter wounds of the World.

Where a volcano has wrought desolation, or a Flood in China, or a Hurricane in Cuba, or a Plague in India, or a Plague in Italy, or ravaging wars in Poland, Serbia or Belgium, there flies the Red Cross, the Angel of God whom the fury of men cannot banish from the Earth, and to the Ends of the Earth, all the ways of the Seven Seas, wherever there is Misery, there is extended, to bless and to save, the Long Arm of Mercy.

Stars Not Visible From Well.
That stars are visible in the daytime from the bottom of a deep shaft or well has been generally believed since the days of Aristotle, but there is not the slightest foundation for the idea. Baron Humboldt, who spent a good deal of time in mines himself and questioned miners in various parts of the world, found no evidence in support of this belief, and it has since been thoroughly exploded. But, like many other "explosive" ideas, it flourishes just as vigorously as ever.—Popular Science Monthly.

Saves Day-old Chicks--- Prevents White Diarrhea

It's the chicks you raise that counts. No use wasting eggs by hatching chicks you do not raise. The big mortality in young chicks is during the first month. This is caused by bowel trouble that is a symptom of digestive disorders, and often called White Diarrhea.

Red Comb Chick Mash with Dried Buttermilk prevents this dread disease as the lactic acid bacilli found in the Dried Buttermilk builds tissue faster than the gas and acid caused by the reaction of indigestion—increases assimilation and acts as a disinfectant of the alimentary canal thus eliminating poisonous irritants.

Healthy, Sturdy Chicks Assured

To induce the necessary exercise feed Red Comb Chick Scratch in litter. Ask for bulletin "Save the Baby Chicks."

The Royal Neighbors are planning on a genuine old-fashioned school day frolic at the closest of their meeting next Tuesday evening. Every member is requested to come dressed in the fashion of school days and bring their own lunch. School day pastimes will be indulged in, there will also be school songs and we are told that some one will speak a piece. Any one who does not appear in school day attire will be fined and the money given to the Red Cross. They will also be prohibited from participating in the game.

THE KING RECOMMENDS THAT PRINCE OTTO STUDY ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S GETTYSBURG ADDRESS.

Synopsis.—Prince Ferdinand William Otto, heir to the throne of Livonia, is unwavering in his determination to form a republic. His grandfather, the king, in order to preserve the kingdom, arranges for the marriage of Princess Hedwig, Otto's cousin, to King Karl of Karula. Hedwig rebels because of an attachment she has formed for Captain Nikky Larisch, Prince Otto's personal attendant. Countess Loschek, attached to the marriage of Archduchess Annaclara, is in love with the king of Karula, for whom she acts as spy. She is threatened by the committee of ten, leaders of the terrorists, unless she bows to the committee's will and helps to secure the crown prince when the king, who is very ill, dies. Nikky is torn between love and a sense of duty and loyalty to his king.

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

But long after Nikky had gone he sat in the darkness. He felt old and tired and a hypocrite. The boy would not forget, nor he himself had not forgotten.

Peter Niburg was shot at dawn the next morning. He went a coward to his death, held between two guards and crying piteously. But he died a brave man. Not once in the long hours of his interrogation had he betrayed the name of the Countess Loschek.

The Crown Prince Ferdinand William Otto of Livonia was having a birthday. Now, a birthday for a crown prince of Livonia is not a matter of a cake with candles on it, and having his ears pulled, once for each year and an extra one to grow old. Nor of a holiday from lessons, and a picnic in spring woods. Nor a party, with children frolicking and scratching the best furniture.

In the first place, he was wakened at dawn and taken to early service in the chapel, a solemn function, with the court assembled and slightly sleepy. The crown prince, who was trying to look his additional dignity of years, sat and stood as erect as possible, and yawned only once.

At eleven o'clock came word that the king was too ill to have him to luncheon, but that he would see him for a few moments that afternoon. Prince Ferdinand William Otto, who was disgruntling the sentence, "Abraham Lincoln freed the slaves in America," and doing it wrong, looked up in dismay.

"I'd like to know what's the use of having a birthday," he declared rebelliously.

The king did not approve of birthday gifts. So there were no gifts. None, that is, until the riding hour came, and Nikky, subversive of all discipline, "He had brought a big lady, wrapped in paper."

"It's quite fresh," he said, as they walked together across the place. "I'll give it to you when we get to the riding school. I saw the woman myself take it out of her basket. So it has no germs on it."

That afternoon, attired in his uniform of the guards, the crown prince received the delegation of citizens in the great audience chamber of the palace, a solitary little figure, standing on the red carpet before the dais at the end. The chancery stood near the boy, resplendent in his dress uniform, a blue ribbon across his shirt front, over which Mathilde had taken hours. He was the Mettlich of the public eye now, hard of features, impassive, indecipherable.

He had staged the affair well. The crown prince, standing alone, so small, so appealing, against his magnificent background, was a picture to touch the hardest. Not for nothing had Mettlich studied the people, read their essential simplicity, their answer to any appeal to the heart. These men were men of family. Surely no father of a son could see that lonely child and not offer him loyalty.

With the same wisdom, he had given the boy small instruction, no small, no speech of thanks. "Let him say what comes into his head," Mettlich had reasoned. "It will at least be spontaneous and boyish."

The first formalities over, and the crown prince having shaken hands nine times, the spokesman stepped forward. He had brought a long, written speech, which had already been given to the newspapers. But after a moment's hesitation he folded it up.

"Your royal highness," he said, looking down, "I have here a long speech, but all that it contains I can say briefly. It is your birthday, highness. We come, representing many others, to present to you our congratulations, and the love of your people. It is our hope—"our hope, highness, that you will have many happy years. To further that hope, we are here today to say that we, representing all classes, are your most loyal subjects. We have fought for his majesty the king, and it necessary we will fight for you."

He glanced beyond the child at the spokesman, and his tone was strong and resolute. "But today we are here, to speak of war, but to present to you our congratulations, our devotion, and our loyalty."

He had forgotten that. He stepped back, was nudged, and recoiled.

"Also a gift," he said, and ruined a fine speech among smiles. But the presentation took place in due order, and Otto cleared his throat.

"Thank you all very much," he said. "It is a very beautiful gift. I admire it very much. I should like to keep it on my desk, but I suppose it is too valuable. Thank you very much."

The spokesman hoped that it might be arranged that he keep it on his desk, an ever-present reminder of the love of his city. To this the chancellor observed that it would be arranged, and the affair was over. To obviate the difficulty of having the delegation back down the long room, it was the crown prince who departed first, with the chancellor.

Late in the afternoon the king sent for Prince Ferdinand William Otto. He had not left his bed since the day he had placed the matter of Hedwig's marriage before the council, and now he knew he would never leave his bed. There were times between sleep and waking when he fancied he was already gone, and that only his body on the bed remained. At such times he saw Herbert, only, strange enough, not as a man grown, but a small boy again; and his queen, as she had looked many years before when he married her, and when at after months of married woes, had crept willing into his arms.

So, awakening from a doze, he the boy there, and called him Herbert. Prince Ferdinand William Otto, rather worried, did the only thing he could think of. He thrust his hand into his grandfather's bag, and the touch of his soft hair roused the king.

The sister left them together in her small room, dropped her keys before the holy image.

In the king's bed chamber Prince Ferdinand William Otto sat on his chair, and talked, but he was not with grandfather with alarm. His grandfather certainly intimated that his thing away had made the king worse, and he looked very ill.

"I'm awfully sorry, grandfather," he said.

"For what?"

"That I went away the day, sir."

"It was, after all, a natural thing to do."

The crown prince could only believe his ears.

"If it could only be arranged safely a little freedom—" Then he still with closed eyes.

Prince Ferdinand William Otto felt uneasy. "But I am very comfortable, and—happy?" he asked to say.

"You are, please, not to worry about me, sir."

The king still held his hand, but he said nothing. There had gone things he wanted to say, crooked where this straight. He had tried, and the boy must avoid his errors. He had cherished enemies, and in his ago they cherished him. All now—

"May I ask you a question, sir?"

"What is it?"

"Will you tell me about Abraham Lincoln?"

"Why?" The king was awake enough now. He fixed the crown prince with keen eyes.

"Well, Miss Braithwaite does not care for him. She says he was not a great man, not as great as Mr. Gladstone, anyhow."

"But Bobby—that's the boy I met; I told you about him—he says he was the greatest man who ever lived."

"And who," asked the king, "do you regard as the greatest man?"

Prince Ferdinand William Otto hesitated, but answered bravely, "You, sir."

"Humph!" The king lay still, smiling slightly. "Well," he observed, "there are, of course, other opinions as to that. However, Abraham Lincoln was a very great man. A dreamer, a visionary, but a great man. You might as Miss Braithwaite teach you his Gettysburg address."

It is rather a model as to speech making, although it contains doctrines that well, you'd better learn it."

"Yes, sir," said Prince Ferdinand William Otto. He hoped it was not very long.

"Otto," said the king suddenly, "do you ever let your father's picture see you?"

"Not always."

"You might look at it now and then. I'd like you to do it."

"Yes, sir."

CHAPTER XIII.

The Gate of the Moon.

A certain friendship had sprung up between old Adelbert and Bobby Thorpe. After school, the boy hung about the ticket taker's booth, not now to a wonderful cleanliness adorned within with pictures of the illustrated papers.

Outwardly Adelbert was peaceful. The dealer now received his pension in full and wrote comforting letters. But his resentment and bitterness at the loss of his position at the opera continued, even grew.

For he had now even a greater wage could eat three meals, besides doing breakfast and afternoon coffee down deep in his heart old Adelbert felt that he had lost caste. Thereafter—that was a settling! He hated, then, of the elect. And now to that had he fallen! To selling tickets for an American cheapness, patronized by butchers, by housewives, by the common people—

Adelbert counted their change with solemn eyes, and brought lunches in paper boxes, which they scattered there was, however, a consolation.

And ordered a new uniform. "Not twenty years had he ventured the privilege, and even now his caution soul quailed at the price. For last half dozen years he had tramped through the streets, painfully aware of shabbiness, of a shiny back, patches, when, on the anniversary of the great battle to which he had sacrificed a leg, the veterans marched between lines of cheering people.

Now, on this approaching anniversary, he could go peacefully, nay, even proudly. The uniform was of the best cloth, and on its second fitting showed already its marvel of tailoring.

On an evening a week before the parade would occur, he got out his boots. He bought always large boots with straight soles, the right not much different from the left in shape. Thus he managed thriftily to wear, on his one leg, first one of the pair, then the other. But they were both worn now, and because of the cost of the new uniform, he could not buy others.

Armed with the better of the two he visited the cobbler's shop, and there met with bitter news.

"A patch here, and a new heel, comrade," he said. "With that and a polish, it will do well enough for marching."

The usual group was in the shop, mostly young men, a scattering of gray heads. The advocates of strange doctrines, most of them. Old Adelbert disapproved of them, regarded them with a sort of contempt.

Now he felt that they smiled behind his back. It was his clothing, he felt. He shrugged his shoulders disdainfully. He no longer felt ashamed before them. Already, although the tailor still pressed its seams and worked upon it with chalk, he was clad in the dignity of the new uniform.

He turned and nodded to them. "A fine evening," he said. "If this weather holds, we will have a good day for the marching." He squinted a faded eye at the sky outside.

"What marching?"

Old Adelbert turned on the speaker sharply. "Probably you have forgotten," he said scornfully, "but in a week comes an anniversary there are many who will remember. The day of a great battle. Perhaps," he added, "if you do not know of what I speak, there are some here who will tell you."

"It is the way of the old to live in the past," a student said. Then, imitating old Adelbert's majestic tone: "We, we live in the future. Eh, comrades?" He turned to the old soldier: "You have not seen the bulletins?"

"Bulletins?"

"There will be no marching, my friend. The uniform now—that is a pity. Perhaps the tailor—" His eyes mocked.

"No marching?"

"An order of the council. It seems that the city is bored by these ancient reminders. It is for peace, and would forget wars. And processions are costly. We grow thrifty. Bands and fireworks cost money, and money, my hero, is scarce—very scarce."

Again the group laughed.

After a time he grasped the truth. There was such an order. The cause was given as the king's illness.

"Since when," demanded old Adelbert angrily, "has the sound of his soldiers' marching disturbed the king?"

"The sound of wooden legs annoys him," observed the mocking student, lighting a cigarette. "He would hear only pleasant sounds, such as the noise of tax money pouring into his vaults. Me—I can think of a pleasant: the tolling of the cathedral bell, at a certain time, will be music to my ears!"

Old Adelbert stood, staring ahead. At last he went out into the street, muttering. "They shame us before the people," he said quickly.

The order of the council had indeed been issued, a painful business over which Mettlich and the council had pondered long. For, in the state of things, it was deemed unwise to permit any gathering of the populace en masse. Mobs lead to riots, and riots again to mobs. Five thousand armed men, veterans, but many of them in their prime, were to themselves a danger. And on these days of anniversary it had been the custom of the university, to march also, a guard of honor. Sedition was rife among the students.

The order was finally issued.

Old Adelbert was ill that night. He tossed about in a fever. His body ached, even the leg which so long ago had moldered in its shallow grave on a battlefield. For these things happened. By morning he was better, but he was a different man. His eyes glowed. His body twitched. He was stronger, too, for now he broke his sword across his knee, and flung the pieces out of the window. And with them went the last fragment of his old loyalty to his king.

Old Adelbert was now, potentially, a traitor.

On the morning after Adelbert had turned his back on his king, Bobby Thorpe rose early, so early, indeed, that even Pepy still slept in her narrow bed, and the milk sellers had not started on their rounds. The early rising was a mistake, owing to a watch which had strangely gained an hour.

Somewhat disconsolately, he wandered about. Heavy watch reigned. From a window he watched the meat seller hang out a freshly killed deer.

cellent hunting. Here they killed and skinned a bear, took fine ivory tusks from a dead elephant, and searched for the trail of a tiger.

The gate was an excellent place for a tiger. Around it was planted an almost impenetrable screen of evergreens, so thick that the ground beneath was quite bare of grass. Here the two hunters crawled on stomachs that began to feel a trifle empty, and here they happened on the trail.

Tucker found it first. His stumpy tail grew rigid. Nose to the ground, he crawled and wriggled through the undergrowth, Bobby at his heels. And now Bobby saw the trail, footprints. It is true that they resembled those of heavy boots with nails. But on the other hand, no one could say surely that the nail marks were not those of claws.

Tucker circled about. The trail grew more exciting. Bobby had to crawl on hands and feet under and through thickets. Branches had been broken as by the passage of some large body. The sportsman clutched his weapon and went on.

An hour later the two hunters returned for breakfast. Washing did something to restore the leader to a normal appearance, but a wonderful family discovered him covered with wounds and strangely silent.

"Why, Bob, where have you been?" his mother demanded. "Why, I never saw so many scratches!"

"I've been hunting," he replied briefly. "They don't hurt, anyhow."

Then he relapsed into absorbed silence. His mother, patting cream on his cereal, placed an experienced hand on his forehead. "Are you sure you feel well, dear?" she asked. "I think your head is a little hot."

"I'm all right, mother."

She was wisely silent, but she ran over in her mind the spring treatment for children at home. The blood, she felt, should be thinned after a winter of sausages and rich cocoa. She mentally searched her medicine chest.

A strange thing happened that day. A broken plate disappeared from the upper shelf of a closet, where Pepy had hidden it; also a cup with a nick in it, similarly concealed; also the heel of a loaf of bread. Nor was that the end. For three days a sort of magic reigned in Pepy's kitchen. Ten potatoes, laid out to peel, became eight. Matches and two ends of candle walked out, as it were, on their own feet. A tin pan with a hole in it left the kitchen table and was discovered hiding in Bobby's bureau, when the Fraulein put away the washing.

The governess protested that he heard nothing she told him, and was absent-minded at his lessons. But as she was always protesting about something, no one paid any attention.

Bobby drew ahead on his pocket allowance without question, and as his birthday was not far off, asked for "the dollar to grow on" in advance. He always received a dollar for each year, which went into the bank, and a dollar to grow on, which was his own to spend.

With the dollar he made a number of purchases—candles and candlestick, a toy pistol and caps, one of the masks for the carnival, now displayed in all the windows, a kitchen knife, wooden plates, and a piece of bacon.

Now and then he appeared at the scenic railway, abstracted and viewing with a calculating eye the furnishings of the engine room and workshop. From there disappeared a broken chair, a piece of old carpet, discarded from a car, and a large jackbox, but the latter he asked for and obtained.

His occasional visits to the railway, however, found him in old Adelbert's shack. He filled his pockets with charcoal from the pall beside the stove, and made cautious inquiries as to methods of cooking potatoes. But the pall of old Adelbert's gloom penetrated at last even through the boy's abstraction.

"I hope your daughter is not worse," he said, politely, during one of his visits to the ticket booth.

"She is well. She recovers strength rapidly."

"And the new uniform—does it fit you?"

"I do not know," said old Adelbert grimly. "I have not seen it recently."

"On the day of the procession we are all going to watch for you. I'll tell you where we will be, so you can look for us."

"There will be no procession."

Then to the boy old Adelbert poured out the bitterness of his soul. He showed where he had torn down the king's picture, and replaced it with one of a dying stag. He reviewed his days in the hospital, and the hardships through which he had passed, to come to this. The king had forgotten his brave men.

During the rest of the day Bobby considered. No less a matter than the sharing of a certain secret occupied his mind. Now, half the pleasure of a secret is sharing it, naturally, but it should be with the right person. And his old playfellow was changed. Bobby, reflecting, wondered whether old Adelbert would really care to join his pirate crew, consisting of Tucker and himself. On the next day, however, he put the matter to the test, having resolved that old Adelbert needed distraction and cheering.

"You know," he said, talking through the window of the booth, "I think when I grow up I'll be a pirate."

"There be worse trades," said old Adelbert, whose hand was now against every man.

"And hide treasure?" Bobby went on. "In a cave, you know?" Bobby edged closer to the window. "I've got the cave already."

"So?"

"Here, in the park. It is a great secret."

"A cave—here in the park?"

"I'll take you, if you'd like to see it."

Old Adelbert was puzzled. The park offered, so far as he knew, no place for a cave. It was a plain, the site of the old wall, and now planted in grass and flowers. He himself had seen it graded and sown. A cave!

"Where?"

"That's a secret. But I'll show it to you, if you won't tell."

Old Adelbert agreed to silence. Until midday, when the railway opened for business, the old soldier was free. So the next morning, duo precautions having been taken, the two conspirators set off. Three, rather, for Tucker, too, was now of the band of the black flag.

There it is! Cried Bobby.

Outside the thicket Bobby hesitated. "I ought to blindfold you," he said. "But I guess you'll need your eyes. It's a hard place to get to."

Perhaps, had he known the difficulties ahead, old Adelbert would not have gone on. And, had he turned back then, the history of a certain kingdom of Europe would have been changed. Maps, too, and school books, and the life story of a small prince. But he went on. Stronger than his young guide, he did not crawl, but bent aside the stiff and ungainly branches of the trees. He battled with the thicket, and came out victorious. He was not so old, then, or so feeble. His arm would have been strong for the king, had he not—

"There it is!" cried Bobby.

Not a cave, it appeared at first. A low doorway, barred with an iron grating, and padlocked. A doorway in the base of a side wall of the gate, and so heaped with leaves that its lower half was covered.

Bobby produced a key. "I broke the padlock that was on it," he explained. "I smashed it with a stone. But I got another. I always lock it."

Prolonged search produced the key. Old Adelbert's face was set hard. On what dungeon had this boy stumbled? It was strange.

Bobby was removing the leaf-mold with his hands. "It was almost all covered when I found it," he said, industriously scraping.

The door swung in, silently, as though the hinges had been recently oiled; as indeed they had, but not by the boy.

"It's rather dirty," he explained. "You go down steps first. Be very careful."

He extended an earthy hand and led the old man down. "It's dark here, but there's a room below; quite a good room. And I have candles."

Truly, a room. Built of old brick, and damp, but with a free circulation of air. Old Adelbert stared about him. It was not entirely dark. A bit of light entered from the aperture at the head of the steps. By it, even before Bobby had lighted his candle, he saw the broken chair, the piece of old carpet, and the odds and ends the child had brought.

Old Adelbert felt curiously shaken. "None have visited this place since you have been here?" he asked.

"I don't suppose any one knows about it. Do you?"

"Those who built it, perhaps. But it is old, very old. It is possible."

He stopped, lost in speculation. There had been a story once of a passageway under the wall, but he recollected nothing clearly. A passageway leading out beyond the wall, through which, in a great siege, a messenger had been sent for help. But that was a passage; while this was a dungeon.

Further plotting for the kidnapping of the crown prince is revealed in the next installment.

Get New Kidneys!

The kidneys are the most overworked organs of the human body, and when they fail in their work of filtering out the system, things begin to happen.

One of the first warning signs is pain or stiffness in the lower part of the back, highly colored urine; loss of appetite; indigestion; or even stone in the bladder. These symptoms indicate a condition that may lead to that dreaded and fatal malady, Bright's disease, for which there is said to be no cure.

Do not delay a minute. At the first indication of trouble in the kidney, liver, bladder, or urinary organs start taking Gold Medal Hansem Oil Capsules, and save yourself before it is too late. Instant treatment is necessary in kidney and bladder troubles. A delay is often fatal.

You can almost certainly find immediate relief in Gold Medal Hansem Oil Capsules. For more than 200 years this famous preparation has been an unfailing remedy for all kidney, bladder and urinary troubles.

It is the pure, original Hansem Oil your great-grandmother used. About two capsules each day will keep you toned up and feeling fine. Get it at any drug store, and if it does not help you, almost immediate refund. Your money will be returned. No other genuine. In boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

Contract for Shad at $1 a Fish.
Shad fishermen of New Castle, Del., numbering the owners of 10 nets, after disposing of their catches for the early part of the season, have made a contract with Francis Doolittle for the entire catch of the remainder of the season, and prices have gone to $1 a fish as caught, large and small. The purchaser has bonded for the carrying out of the contract with a surety company of Philadelphia.

Mrs. John A. Logan
Tells How Annual Ceremony Was Inaugurated By Her Husband

THE widow of a great general who led many victorious charges in the Civil war, and mother of a soldier who laid down his life in the service of his country, Mrs. John A. Logan, has given her time and efforts since the commencement of foreign hostilities to work for the afflicted of the present war.

"I cannot rest, and will not, so long as strength is given me, for I know what sorrow and suffering is wrought upon the helpless by war," she said.

It was in the spacious workroom at the top of her beautiful home in Washington that her visitor found her. It was not a sewing day, and instead of European work, Mrs. Logan was sitting at her desk absorbed in the perusal of letters, papers and books which related to the long past of her own life, to a war nearer home and to her participation in the events which made American history at a crucial period of this country's life, and it was of those things she was in a mood to talk.

"I have been thinking of what the coming Memorial day must mean to us all," she said. "The survivors of the Civil war are rapidly passing off the stage of life, but those who yet remain from that time, and they who are following us, will see to it that homage is done to those who paid the price of a nation's salvation. It is a duty we owe and it should never die.

"This year, as we strew with flowers the graves of those who died for a just cause we cannot but think of the terrible cynicism of suffering and death now overwhelming Europe, and the great range of memorial days which will be its heritage ere long.

"I prefer the name Memorial day to Decoration day, for although ours is a national holiday, it should not be forgotten that it is a day of national remembrance of the dead and ought to be observed with solemn quietude and dignity. I have been very much pained these later years to note that many of the younger generation have lost all sight of the original meaning of the day, and that in some places it is celebrated by such diversions as horse racing and other riotous sports which seem to be a very prostitution of the main idea of the occasion.

"The Grand Army of the Republic has under strong protestations against the misuse of our national day of mourning for the soldiers who gave their lives for our country, and it is good to note that the Sons of Veterans, who are now filling the places of their fathers, take a very serious view of their duty in consecrating this one day to sacred memory and affectionate tribute to our soldier dead, and are carrying out appropriate programs at the various grounds where soldiers of the Civil war are buried.

"I can, too, say in all truth that Memorial day has brought forth a great harvest of worthily expressed sentiment, the occasion having inspired men and women to utterances of eloquence, beautiful thoughts and true poetry, because the theme is worthy of the best that loyal hearts can feel and gifted tongues or pens express.

"Yes, Decoration day was the thought and institution of General Logan, and I recall every detail of every incident which led to its inauguration. It was in March, 1893, that General Logan, re-emerging a promise made during the election campaign of Grant and Colfax, made an engagement for himself and me to accompany his good friend, Col. Charles L. Wilson, editor of the Chicago Journal, upon a visit to the city of Richmond and the battlefields of Virginia. The colonel, who was a bachelor, was accompanied by his fiancée, Miss Farrar of Boston.

"General Logan was then in congress, and matters of great importance were before the national legislature.

NATION'S DEBT TO VETERANS

Glorious Achievements of the Country
Only Made Possible by Their Great Sacrifices.

Let us ever remember that the present grows out of the past. We are one and undivided because our fathers fought for the Union which they considered more precious than life itself. The greatness and achievements of the American nation have been made possible because of the services and sac-and in consequence my husband could not accompany us. The colonel insisted upon my taking my two children with us, although both were very small, my little boy, John A. Logan, Jr., a mere baby. However, he rejoined the trip in the light of an historic pilgrimage and felt that the children should see some of the battlefields over which distinguished generals had led their armies.

"It was a cold, bleak day on which we arrived in Richmond, and the hotel was a desolate place of refuge. It afforded one of the evidences of the privations which the people of the Confederacy had suffered. These evidences were very plentiful throughout the city, as we later discovered. The vehicle which Colonel Wilson found for our conveyance for the drive to the battlefields nearby was a wretched carriage drawn by two miserably poor horses. The driver was the picture of dejection, and the small boy who served as footman was no better, and he shivered from head to foot with the cold.

"As we drove over the battlefields we observed colored people picking up the bullets and pieces of shell, shrapnel, minnie balls, bits of broken cannon and other iron material. Foundries had set a price on this product, and it afforded quite a livelihood for a time to the poor about fortified cities and battlefields.

"We visited the churchyards and cemeteries at Richmond and Petersburg made historic through the struggles which had taken place in and around those cities. There were a great many burial grounds in those neighborhoods, because the glories which were land grants from England to the Episcopal church in America, had still existed as church grants at the time of the Civil war, and were used as burial grounds for the citizens and soldiers.

"In the burying ground near Petersburg we saw many hundreds of graves of Confederate soldiers, and they nearly all bore a small, faded flag, and the dark, withered wreaths and remains of their floral decorations of nearly a year before. These mournful mementoes of the bygone tragedy of the South touched me deeply, and on our return home from the tour of the battlefields I told my husband of this tribute of the Southern men and women to their soldier dead.

"General Logan reciprocated my feeling as to the fitness of the sentiment expressed. He said that it was a revival of the ancient custom, for the people of ages past, in old countries had performed the rite of decorating the graves of their dead heroes with flowers. He considered the matter for a time, and then said he did not see why it might not be revived in the case of the fallen Union soldiers.

"General Logan, who was then commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, decided that he would issue an order for the decoration of the soldiers' graves on the following 30th of May. Sending for General Chipman, adjutant general of the Grand Army of the Republic, he dictated order No. 11 for the first decoration of Union soldiers' graves which ever took place in the United States.

"That order is now read at every Decoration day ceremony which takes place over the graves of Union soldiers of those whose memory we cherish and whose graves we decorate. The foundations of our present-day immunities were laid in blood, and the present has no meaning isolated from the past. Because of our periodical looking backward upon heroism and sacrifice and manhood we learn how to be brave and patriotic today and to revalue the principles and institutions that make for the highest and noblest personal and national life. Our towers and triumphal arches, our pageantry and luster, our successes and who fought in the Civil war. It is as follows: "And Mrs. Logan picked out from the papers she had at hand and read:

Headquarters, Grand Army of the Republic, Washington, D. C., May 8, 1893.

GENERAL ORDER NO. 11.
1. The 30th of May, 1893, designated for the purpose of strewing flowers or other tokens of affection on the graves of soldiers who died in defense of their country during the late rebellion and whose bodies now lie in almost every city, village and hamlet churchyard in the land, is prescribed as a form of ceremony in their own way, arranged with fitting services and testimonials to respect as circumstances may permit.

"We are organized, comrades, as our regulations tell us, 'for the purpose of strengthening those kind and fraternal feelings which have bound together the soldiers, sailors and marines, who united to suppress the late rebellion.' Let us aid, more to assure this realization by heroic deeds, tenderly the memory of our departed dead, who made their last sacrifice against our country and its freedom to a race in chains, and their souls the tattoo of rebellious traitors in arms. We should guard their graves with sacred vigilance.

"All that the consecrated 'weal and taste of the nation can add to the solemn and security is but a fitting tribute to the memory of her slain defenders. Let no wanton foot tread rudely upon the hallowed grounds. Let pleasant visits to the coming and going of friends, visitors and fond mourners, let no vandalism or aversion or neglect, no rude jests, or trifles, to the present or stig generations that we have forgotten a people the cost of a tree and undisturbed repose.

"If other eyes grow dull, and other hands black, and other hearts cold in their own trust, ours shall keep it well as the light and warmth of the life we give to us.

"Let us, then, at the time appointed, gather around their sacred remains and with the choicest flowers of spirit, let us strew them above them the old days they lived in honor and glory. In this solemn presence renew our pledges to aid and assist those whom they have left among us, a sacred charge upon our nation's gratitude—the soldier's widow and orphan.

"It is the purpose of the command, in chief to inaugurate this observance with the hope that it will be kept up from year to year, while a survivor of the war remains to honor the memory of his departed comrades. He earnestly desires the public press to call attention to this order and lend its friendly aid in bringing it to the notice of comrades in all parts of the country in time for simultaneous compliance therewith.

"Department commanders will use every effort to make this order effective. By order of:
JOHN A. LOGAN,
Commander in Chief.
N. P. CHIPMAN,
Adjutant General.
WM. T. COLLINS, A. A. G.

"The loyal people of the country took most kindly to the idea," said Mrs. Logan, "and my husband's anticipations were fully realized by the observance of the day in every state in the Union, the exercises being characterized by observations very much the same as those which take place today.

"After many inquiries and some discussion it was decided that May 30 was probably the most appropriate day for the universal observance of the ceremony in every state in the Union, and General Logan finally succeeded in making the day a national holiday.

"On Memorial day there is no distinction made between officers and men. Death, the great leveler, makes them all heroes alike, and plaudits and blossoms are distributed with equal generosity between the great generals and the privates.

"There are few now living who won great honors during the Civil war. All the great commanders of armies have passed away, and there are but few left who commanded corps, divisions, brigades or regiments. The patriotic organizations who have so faithfully preserved the memory of their fallen comrades, are also much depleted in membership. It is therefore, to the men of the younger generation we must look to keep green the memory of those who died to make our nation.

"Still Good for Another Fight.
"I was in Gen'l Butler's command," said an old colored man with grizzled hair at a recent reunion, "but I'm good for another fight if they want any of us. I had a bullet in this leg fifty years, but I've got it taken out and got my shoulder fixed up, so I'm just as good as I ever was."

THE TRUTH ABOUT
ECZEMA AND PILES

Thousands and thousands of people, says Peterson, are learning every week that one 80 cent box of Peterson's Ointment will abolish eczema and hemorrhoids, and the grateful letters I receive every day are worth more to me than money.

"I had eczema for many years on my head and could not get anything to do it any good. I saw your ad and got one box. You done me. There isn't a blotch on my head now, and I couldn't help but thank Peterson, for the cure is great."—Mrs. Mary Hill, 420 Third Ave., Pittsburgh, Pa.

"I have had itching piles for 15 years and Peterson's is the only ointment that relieves me, besides the piles seem to have gone."—A. B. Ruger, 1127 Washington Ave., Racine, Wis.

"The Peterson's Ointment for old sores, salt rheum and all skin diseases, it banishes pimples and blackheads in less than 10 days and leaves the skin clean, clear and pleasant to look upon. Druggists guarantee it. Mail orders filled. Charges prepaid by Peterson Bros., Buffalo, N. Y. Adv.

MARCH TO VICTORY

Courage is a matter of the blood. Without good red blood a man has a weak heart and poor nervous system.

In the spring is the best time to take stock of one's condition. If the blood is thin and watery, face pale or puffy, generally weak, tired and listless, one should take a spring tonic. One that will do the spring house cleaning, an old-fashioned herbal remedy that was used by everybody nearly 50 years ago is still safe and sane because it contains no alcohol or narcotic. It is made up of blood root, Gold Seal root, Oregon Grape root, Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark—extracted with glycerine and made into liquid or tablets. This blood tonic was first put out by Dr. Pierce in ready-to-use form and since then has been sold by million bottles as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Dr. Druggists do not keep this in tablet form, send 80 cents for a vial to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Kidney diseases carries away a large percentage of our people. What is to be done? The answer is easy. Eat less meat, eat coarse, plain food, with plenty of vegetables, drink plenty of water between meals, and take an uric acid Anemic (double strength), obtainable at almost any drug store. It was first discovered by Dr. Pierce. Most every one troubled with uric acid finds that Anemic dissolves the uric acid as hot water does sugar. You can obtain a trial package by sending ten cents to Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y.

Take "Eatonic" and Laugh At Stomach Troubles

H. L. Kramer, the man who originated Cascarets, has discovered a safe, quick-acting relief for bad stomachs. He named it EATONIC for your stomach's sake.

You can eat anything you like now and digest it in comfort, for stomach ouch is positively assured if you eat an EATONIC tablet regularly after each meal.

EATONIC acts directly with the food the moment it enters the stomach. It immediately checks any tendency toward too much acid and enables the food to pass from the stomach into the bowel in a sweetened condition, and thus prevents the formation of sour distressing gases that upset digestion and cause a bloated, dull, and unpleasant feeling that makes you want to repeat the EATONIC.

EATONIC enables you to eat your fill and laugh at indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, "sour stomach" and all the other bugaboos of "the man-afraid-of-his-stomach."

Kramer says: "EATONIC should be in every home ready for use after every meal. An EATONIC tablet will aid you naturally to easily digest and assimilate—your food can be thoroughly enjoyed without the slightest danger of misery from acid stomach. I strongly advise every one to take EATONIC after meals. To correct bad stomachs and keep them in perfect condition, it is a most wonderful discovery."

If EATONIC fails to give you prompt stomach relief, your money will be refunded; 50c buys a large box at any drug store. Or write to Eaton's Remedy Co., 1018 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, U. S. A.

U. S. Must Cut Use Of Wheat by One-Half

America Consumed 42,000,000 Bushels Monthly. From Now Until Harvest Must Use Only 21,000,000.

RATION PER PERSON IS 1½ POUNDS OF WHEAT PRODUCTS WEEKLY

Military Necessity Calls for Greater Sacrifice Here—Allied War Bread Must Be Maintained—Our Soldiers and Sailors to Have Full Allowance.

If we are to furnish the Allies with the necessary proportion of wheat to maintain their war bread from now until the next harvest, and this is a military necessity, we must reduce our monthly consumption to 21,000,000 bushels a month, as against our normal consumption of about 42,000,000 bushels, or 50 per cent. of our normal consumption. This is the situation as set forth by the U. S. Food Administration at Washington. Reserving a margin for distribution to the army and for special cases, leaves for general consumption approximately 1½ pounds of wheat products weekly per person. The Food Administration's statement continues: Many of our consumers are dependent upon bakers' bread. Such bread must be durable and therefore, requires a larger proportion of wheat products than cereal breads baked in the household. Our army and navy require a full allowance. The well-to-do in our population can make greater sacrifices in the consumption of wheat products than can the poor. In addition, our population in the agricultural districts, where the other cereals are abundant, are more skilled in the preparation of breads from these other cereals than the crowded city and industrial populations.

With improved transportation conditions we now have available a surplus of potatoes. We also have in the spring months a surplus of milk, and we have ample corn and oats for human consumption. The drain on rye and barley, as substitutes, has already greatly exhausted the supply of these grains.

To effect the needed saving of wheat we are wholly dependent upon the voluntary assistance of the American people and we ask that the following rules shall be observed:

1. Householders to use not to exceed a total of 1½ pounds per week of wheat products per person. This means not more than 1½ pounds of Victory bread containing the required percentage of substitutes and one-half pound of cooking flour, macaroni, crackers, pastry, pies, cakes, wheat breakfast cereals, all combined.

2. Public eating places and clubs to observe two wheatless days per week, Monday and Wednesday, as at present. In addition thereto, not to serve to any one guest at any one meal an aggregate of breadstuffs, macaroni, crackers, pastry, pies, cakes, wheat breakfast cereals, containing a total of more than two ounces of wheat flour. No wheat products to be served unless specially ordered. Public eating establishments not to buy more than six pounds of wheat products for each ninety meals served, thus conforming with the limitations requested of the householders.

3. Retailers to sell not more than one-eighth of a barrel of flour to any town customer at any one time, and not more than one-quarter of a barrel to any country customer at any one time, and in no case to sell wheat products without the sale of an equal weight of other cereals.

4. We ask the bakers and grocers to reduce the volume of Victory bread sold, by delivery of the three-quarter pound loaf where one pound was sold before, and corresponding proportions in other weights. We also ask bakers not to increase the amount of their wheat flour purchases beyond 70 per cent. of the average monthly amount purchased in the four months prior to March 1.

5. Manufacturers using wheat products for non-food purposes should curtail such use entirely.

6. There is no limit upon the use of other cereals, flours, and meals, corn, barley, buckwheat, potato flour, etc.

Many thousands of families throughout the land are now using no wheat products whatever, except a very small amount for cooking purposes, and are doing so in perfect health and satisfaction. There is no reason why all of the American people who are able to cook in their own households cannot subsist perfectly well with the use of less wheat products than one and one-half pounds a week, and we specially ask the well-to-do households in the country to follow this additional program in order that we may provide the necessary marginal supplies for these parts of the community less able to adapt themselves to so large a proportion of substitutes.

In order that we shall be able to make the wheat exports that are absolutely demanded of us to maintain the civil population and soldiers of the allies and our own army, we propose to supplement the voluntary cooperation of the public by a further limitation of distribution, and we shall place at once restrictions on distribution which will be adjusted from time to time to secure as nearly equitable distribution as possible. With the arrival of harvest we should be able to relax such restrictions. Until then we ask the necessary patience, sacrifice and co-operation of the distributing trades.

ALLIED FOOD SHIPMENTS REACH LARGE TOTAL

A general idea of the quantity of food sent to European allies by the United States from July 1, 1914, to January 1, 1918, is given by figures just announced by the U. S. Food Administration. In that period the United States has furnished complete year's rations for 57,100,000 people. In addition there was enough extra protein to supply this portion of the diet for 22,194,570 additional men.

The total export of wheat and wheat flour to the three principal allies is equivalent to about 354,000,000 bushels. Pork exports for the 3½ years amounted to almost 2,000,000,000 pounds. Exports of fresh beef totaled 448,484,400 pounds. The amount of food exported to Russia is negligible compared with that sent to the western allies.

 ONLY AMERICA CAN HELP. *****

"On your side are boundless supplies of men, food, and material; on this side a boundless demand for their help."

"Our men are war-weary and their nerves have been strained by more than three years of hard, relentless toil."

"Our position is critical, particularly until the next harvest, but the United States can save us."

"You Americans have the men, the skill, and the material to save the allied cause."

SIR JOSEPH MACLAY, British Shipping Controller.

Where Elder Ducks Abound. Elder ducks are numerous everywhere in Norway. Being the producers of the valuable elderdown, a staple article of trade in Norway, they are rigorously protected by law, and are in consequence so tame as in many places to approximate a domestic fowl. The birds are regarded with far from friendly eyes by the fishermen, by reason of the damage they work among the spawning beds of the fish. Lobsters in particular suffer severely from their devastations.

The Electric Vacuum Cleaner

absolutely does away with periodical house-cleaning—it's Home clean Home, all the time.

No need of open doors and windows in the cold winter. Cleans carpets and rugs without taking them outside in the cold to shake them.

The Electric Vacuum Cleaner works like a toy alongside of the old broom. Gives you so much more time and recreation.
